

From "interested reader" to "booked AOG meeting" in four emails.

The newsletter list is the campaign's owned channel. This sequence triggers when a contact subscribes via the LinkedIn newsletter post (Wk 04), then drips over the following 6 weeks. Each email respects the same principle as the LinkedIn content: short, specific, no hype, one CTA. The goal of the sequence is a single conversion: an AOG booth meeting in March.

Hi {{first_name}} — quick promise.

Thanks for subscribing to The Deeper Standard.

One short email every two weeks. Always something specific — a case study, an operational standard we use, a question we want you to push back on. No newsletter-style roundups, no "industry insights." If we waste your inbox time, hit unsubscribe and we'll respect it.

While you're here, the case study from this week's LinkedIn post is below — Timor Sea FPSO, 11-day campaign, zero LTI. Redacted PDF.

Preheader: Saves both sides money. Free PDF — no form.

5 questions to ask before your next IRM framework.

Quick one, {{first_name}}.

We're publishing a one-page checklist of the five questions we wish operators asked us before contract negotiation — not three months in. Saves everyone money and uncomfortable variation orders.

Examples on the list:

- What's your documented mobilisation window from PO?
- Who is the named project lead, and what's their last campaign?
- How do you report anomalies you find that weren't in scope?

Full PDF below. No form, no gate.

Subject: What an integrity manager actually told us last month

Preheader: A two-paragraph quote from an operator. Worth 90 seconds.

"The contractors we keep aren't the ones with the biggest fleet."

One quick story, {{first_name}}.

Sat down with an integrity manager from a North-West Shelf operator last month. We asked what separates contractors they re-tender versus drop. Direct quote, paraphrased only to anonymise:

"The contractors we keep aren't the ones with the biggest fleet. They're the ones who tell us about a problem on Tuesday — not on the close-out report. The bar is honesty before it's capability."

Same principle drives everything we're publishing in this campaign. If your team's experience matches that — or pushes against it — we'd like to hear.

Come argue with us in person — AOG Perth, 11–13 March.

{{first_name}} —

We've spent six weeks in your inbox telling you what we think the IRM standard should be. AOG Perth is where you tell us where we're wrong.

Booth F38, Hall 2 · 11–13 March 2026

30-minute meeting slots with our operations team — not a sales pitch, a working conversation about your current tender environment.

First 10 bookings get a printed copy of the four case studies we'll publish before AOG. Calendar link below.
